The Inauguration of Our New President

On September 30, 1983, Jack Carter Phillips was inaugurated as the fifteenth president of Union College.

Over 60 guests, presidents of colleges and universities or their respresentatives, led off the colorful academic procession, down the walk from Centennial Hall to College Street (above) and into the Conway Boatman Chapel. The Board of Trustees, officers of the college, and the faculty followed.

President Emeritus Mahlon Miller passes on the medallion with the seal of the college to our new president. The president wears it with his academic regalia on ceremonial occasions.

President Phillips delivers his inaugural address, the climax of the ceremonies, from the pulpit of the Conway Boatman Chapel.

The Chief Marshall of the academic procession, Registrar Edwin LeMaster, and Vice President for Academic Affairs Dwight Stewart look smilingly on as Douglas Lunsford, who headed the academic procession bearing the Centennial Flag, exchanges affectionate congratulations with President Phillips following the ceremonies.

The Inauguration Was A Time For Smiles

Visiting dignitaries enjoyed a buffet brunch in the gymansium before the inaugural ceremonies.

Some facts about the Inauguration

Presidents and delegates from 61 colleges and universities and 9 representatives from learned societies and assocations attended the ceremonies.

Besides flag bearer Douglas Lunsford, other students served as marshalls in the academic procession: Joe Karr, Donald "Happy" Mobelini, Michael Taylor, and Mathew Kompancaril.

Campus Minister Quentin Scholtz smiles with the new president.

The President's Lady, Mrs. Juanita Phillips, smilingly poses here with daughter Annette. The president's wife plays an important role in the life of the college, serving as its official hostess and lending much time and effort to a variety of projects in its behalf.

Serenely happy smiles — and a bit of hand-holding — are typical of the college's new president and his wife. They are shown here at the reception in the Student Center following the ceremonies in the Conway Boatman Chapel.

. . . And more facts

Mayor Charles Buchanan proclaimed September 30, 1983, the day of the inauguration, as "Jack and Juanita Phillips Day" in Barbourville.

During the ceremonies, Dr. Robert L. Anderson, minister of Barbourville's First Methodist Church and a trustee of the college read the Scripture passages. Dr. Douglas L. Blair, Chairman of the College's Board of Trustees, presided at the ceremonies.

The Union College Singers, under Dr. Joe Tarry, sang the anthem "Praise the Lord" by George Frederick Handel.

We've Got Gas

The spectacular picture of the flaring of Union College's own new gas well was taken about 6 a.m. one morning in early November, 1983, shortly after drilling begun on October 19 and ending on October 26, had struck natural gas in two rock formations over 2,000 feet down.

Shortly after assuming office, President Phillips appointed an energy committee after Mr. Harold Jones, a Barbourville businessman, suggested that it might be possible to strike gas on college property. Mr. Jones, as chairman, worked with Dr. Deril Mays, Professor of Psychology, Mr. Samuel Davies, a trustee, and Mr. Walter Powell, Jr., President of our Alumni Association. The president immediately felt that the advantages outweighed the risks. Dr. Mays had already done considerable ground work on the project.

More than $50,000 in cash contributions and gifts-in-kind, all from citizens of the Barbourville area, financed the project. Alpha Gas, Wiser Oil, Allegheny Nuclear Surveys, Argo Energy Co., and Samar, who supplied the drilling rig, all helped with bringing the well in.

With $141,000 budgeted for gas in the 1983-84 fiscal year, with a line run from the well just south of College Park to the campus by Delta Natural Gas Co., early in 1984 the college was already beginning to realize substantial savings.

Flaring 60 feet in the air, the flame of the gas well casts its light on (left to right) Harold Jones, Deril Mays, President Phillips, Samuel Davies, and Walter F. Powell, Jr.

Tension mounted as the drilling rig (right) bore downward into the earth. Harold Jones and Dr. Deril Mays (above) were frequently on hand to observe progress. Mr. Jones proposed to President Phillips that a gas well on Union College property might be feasible, and Dr. Mays contributed much to the project from his experience in drilling oil wells in the Barbourville area.

Wiser Oil Co. officials (below) measure the flow of gas from the well as Marshall Potter, Union's Director of Buildings and Grounds (left), and Edward Black, Vice President for Administration (center) look on in the background. Cecil Wilson (right), Union College trustee, expresses the concern everyone felt at this crucial moment. The gas was there, however!

Wiser Oil employees put a control device on the outlet of the well as Milton Townsend and Walter Powell look on.

In August The Weather Was Warm . . .

Doug Lunsford watches in the background, Chuck Wood sits this one out, and Mike Smith shows his form at balloon bobbling as Jill Garner and Jennifer Van Sickle keep an eye on the proceedings.

Lighthouse Singers Mindy Starr, Don Gilbert, and Ann Naglee have a friendly tussle over who gets in the swim first at a retreat at Pine Mountain State Resort Park at the beginning of the fall semester.

. . . But In January Came Snow

The snow did not stop the active men in Stevenson Hall, however.

(At left) Alvin Bailey moves to intercept Tim Gurran who is carrying the ball as the snow falls with the same abandon the players seem to have.

(Below) Several of the men began to roll up a snowball on the front campus that grew bigger and bigger as they toiled to push it up in the direction of Centennial Hall. They finally managed to push it into the dormitory quadrangle, and what with one thing and another, they added to it until the monster in the large photograph was the result. The small picture shows the work in progress with Wally Eccleston, Mike Miller, Mosheer Abdel-Galil, Jason Wick, and master builder Ted Abner who is sculpting the upper part of the creation. In the large photograph, Roby Stamper, one of the original snowballers is second from left.

The Gangs Are All Here

The Smith Gang: Four members of the A.J. Smith family are students at Union in the 1983-1984 year. Shown here with mother, Mrs. Freda Smith, are Michael, Johnny Lee, Teresa and Regina. This photograph was made the night of the Parents Weekend Banquet where Michael, President of the Student Senate was one of the speakers.

At any college, there are always groups of students who have some common interest or who have some distinguishing factor that identifies them as a "gang." Those on these pages are not exactly "gangs," but they do share interests or some link that sets them apart as a group.

The Basketball Fan Gang: (above) Steve Nagbe, Amos Sykes, and Al Barnes assume an unaccustomed seriousness while they wait for a game to begin.

The Upward Bound Gang: (left) Bessi Roark, Verlene Congleton, and Sandy Peters display the plaque given to Upward Bound students. All three have now moved up to full time student status at Union. The college conducts the Upward Bound program each summer.

The Singing Gang: The Union College Singers concentrate on their director Dr. Joe Tarry, or else watch the music for their entrance. Miranda Stroud, Ann Naglee, Elin Crabtree, with husband Dan behind her, Deronda Collier, Carl Turner, Lori Morrison, and Cotha Van Doren perform in the Conway Boatman Chapel.

The Hanging of the Greens Gang: Students and faculty members join in singing Christmas carols around the piano in the chapel as part of the annual ceremony during which the chapel windows are decorated for the Yuletide.

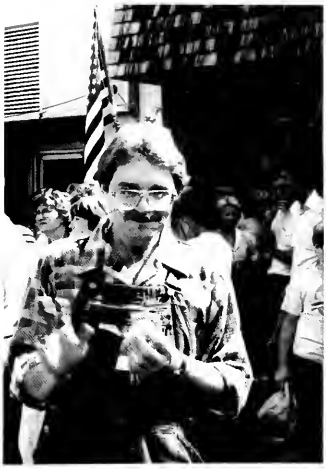
There Was Music . . .

Tom Bledsoe and Rich Kirby (above) under the auspices of the Appalachian Semester, enterained an appreciative audience with a program of old-time mountain music in the Student Center in November, 1983.

Betty Stroud of the Music Department presented a recital of art songs and operatic arias in March, 1984.

Five faculty members (below) take a bow following their presentation of organ and vocal music, part of the observance of Martin Luther's 500th anniversary.

. . . And Time For Fun



Rickie Allen, dressed for the occasion, makes a personal purchase at the Daniel Boone Festival to satisfy the inner man. Shiela Tucker (left) of Union's Business Department demonstrates consumer economics as she attacks the business end of a hot dog.

Susan Sprinkle clowns a bit and gets an answering grin from a child at the Crippled Children's Services at the Hearing Center Building. Susan is among those students who volunteer for such good services as part of their commitment to Union's C.R.O.S.S., the Campus Registry of Sharing Services.

What Is It?

Clockwise: A basketball floats under the starry gym lights. The gas line being buried under the athletic field. A closeup of Cumberland Falls. Reels for photographic film. Yearbook photographers do get whimiscal at times!

College life may seem to flow more or less smoothly along, with one happening as only a moment in time, but Union College students on these pages are caught by the camera in a moment in that flow of events, working, going to classes, hobnobbing in the Snack Bar, showing off their talent in a show or just having a good time with the exhuberance that all of us feel at times.

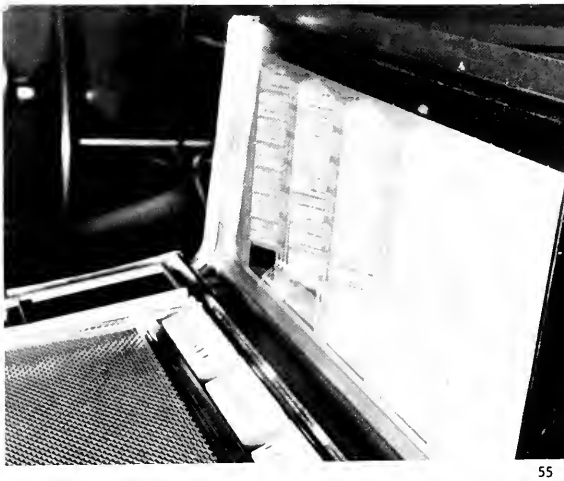
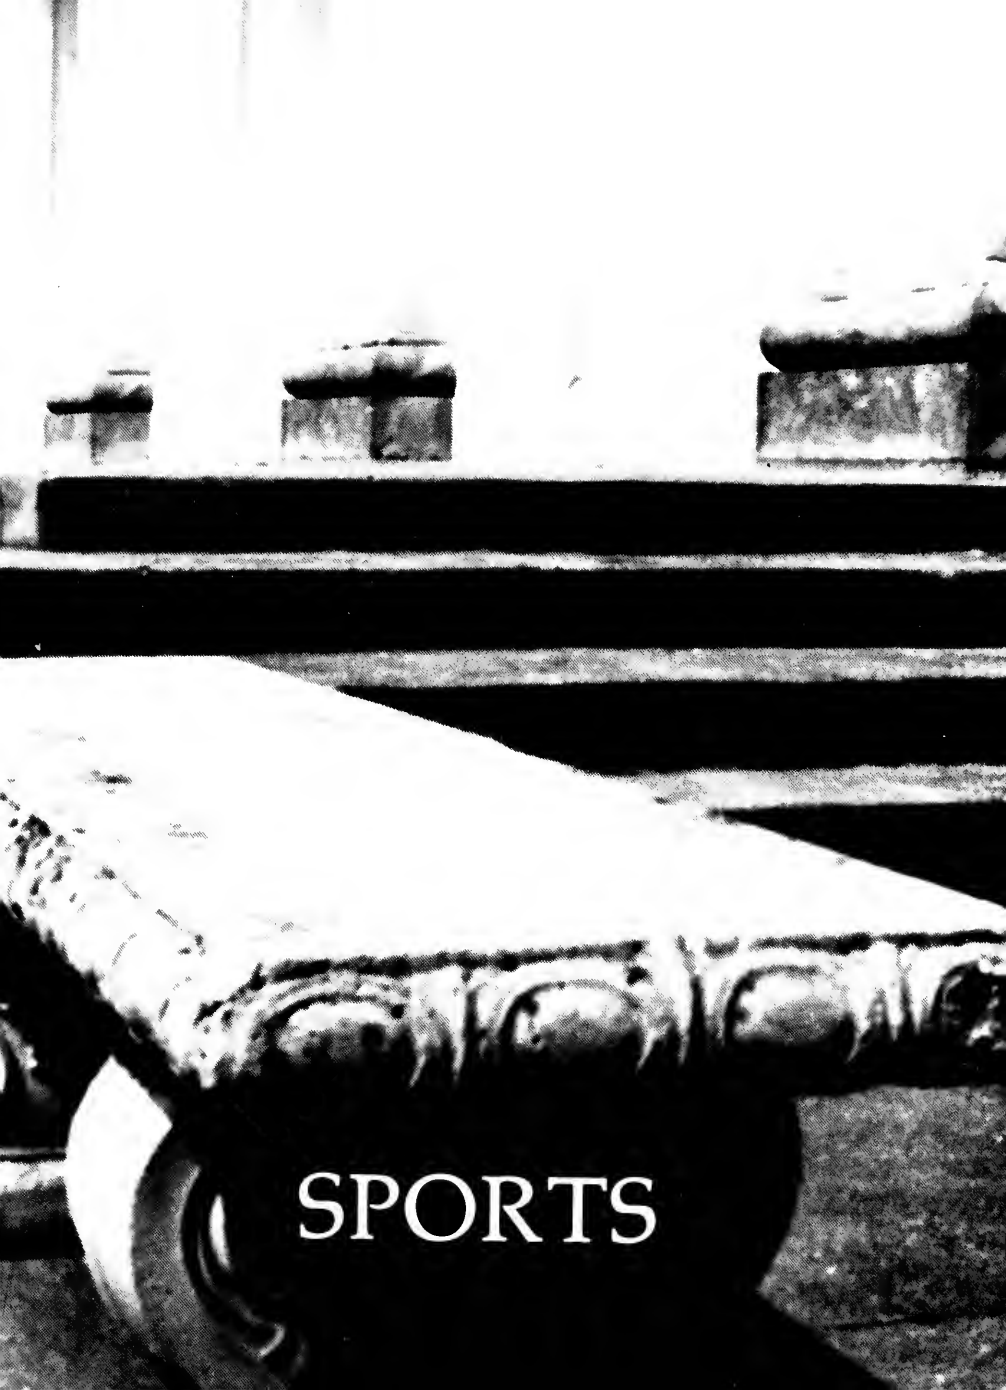
This ?!@X*?¢*#!! FILM!



The last of Dean Layton's storm troopers.

What do you mean, "Since we're in the chapel?"

My, my my . . . All them books!



SPORTS

Left: Darwin Winston uses some fancy footwork to send the soccer ball flying. Above: Chris Santarelli puts on the brakes as Bob Ellison captures the ball and an opponent goes down.

Union's 1983-1984 Soccer Team: Front Row: Kagawa Bunsu, Shuji Ogiwara, Steve Nagbe, John Arzoumanian, Kennedy Jawan, Ricardo Testino, and Robert Dunaway.

Soccer

Darwin Winston eyes the airborne ball as John Lusby wards off the charge of an opponent.

Maher Shaat gets the ball away with a lusty kick as Bob Ellison watches in the background.

The 1983-1984 season was a rebuilding year for Union's soccer program. The small, but determined team showed constant improvement from game to game throughout the season. Coach Metcalfe's comment was, "I believe our program was more structured and concentrated this year. Everyone learned a lot and more concentration on fundamentals will pay off in the future." Scott Plummer, goalie, and Chris Santarelli, fullback, were named All State Tournament Players, with Chris also named All State League Player and Union's Most Valuable Player. Darwin Winston, another fullback, was also an All State League Player. Bob Dunaway earned the title of Most Improved Player on the Union team. Union's young and energetic team rated third in the "B" Division in the KISA State Tournament.

With a year of solid accomplishment behind it, the Union College soccer program should attain even better results in the coming year.

Left: Union's players in the striped-sleeved uniforms mix it up with opponents as the ball sails toward the Union goal. Soccer is rapidly becoming a popular sport, and it is now a Varsity sport at Union College.

Men's Basketball

The Union College Bulldogs in the 1983-1984 season faced what our coaches considered the "toughest schedule in the league." Coach Peterson's efforts to build a strong team paid off with the most conference wins in some years. One triumph was the defeat of the Cumberland College team which was ranked 9th in the country, their first defeat after 21 straight wins. James Anderson led all colleges and universities in the State of Kentucky in points per game — 24.4, and in rebounds per game — 12.1. Anderson was also named to the first all-conference team and the all-district team. Coach Peterson said, "I feel like this season was definitely a step in the right direction to reach our goal, which is to be able to compete with the best teams in our class, inside or outside of Kentucky." With five starters returning for the 1984-1985 season, as Coach Peterson said, "With almost everyone returning and with the squad playing as well as they did as a team, things should continue to look up."

James Anderson exhibits a dancer's grace as he attempts another basket to enhance his outstanding record per game.

Above: Joe Karr takes to the air as Georgetown players seem taken by surprise. Below: Happy Mobelini is alert to his opponent as he protects the ball with some fancy footwork.

Seated: Lisa Taylor, Marilu Wilder, Regina Hubbard, Lori Jolly, Lisa Johnson, and Manager Felicia B. Pembleton.

Back Row: Coach Karen Fishbaugh, Billie Cornett, Sherry Caudill, Jennifer VanSickle, Marquetta Burkhart, Pam Cox, Shelley Combs, Amy Harris, Tammie Perkins, and Manager Sherry Messer.

The Lady Bulldogs finished a commendable season by winning the Kentucky Women's Intercollegiate Conference Championship. Individual players distinguished themselves also. Regina Hubbard, for instance, scored her 1000th career point in a game against Pikeville College in the opening round of the Kentucky Intercollegiate Athletic Conference Tournament. In addition, she was named to the KWIC Tournament Team, the KIAC Team, and the All-District National Association of Intercollegiate Athletes Team in our District 32, placing 4th in the district in scoring.

Other Lady Bulldogs also make their mark in the 1983-1984 season. Lisa Johnson led the KIAC in Assists. Sherry Caudill also placed on the KWIC Tournament Team, and Jennifer VanSickle tied the Union College records in rebounds in one game with 15. Caudill also scored the most points per game against Campbellsville on December 10, 1983; she also made 20 out of 24 free throws in the same game. Lisa Johnson is credited with a total of 10 assists in games against Lincoln Memorial University and Clinch Valley College. Besides her tying the Union College record in rebounds with 15, she went on to get 17 in January in a game against Alice Lloyd College.

Women's Softball

The Lady Bulldogs Softball Team had a successful 12-7 season, due largely to the team's depth and consistent defensive play. Lisa Johnson in left field, Felicia Pembleton, Lori Jolly, and Patty Vavrick, fielders, all did an outstanding job in their positions. Lori Brockman distinguished herself at third base. The women also played in both the Kentucky Women's Intercollegiate Conference and the Kentucky Intercollegiate Athletic Conference Tournaments.

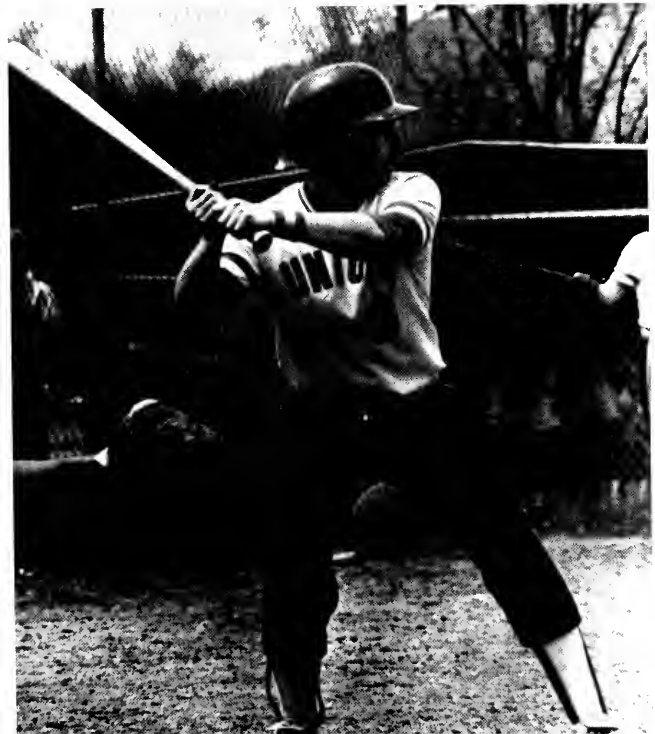
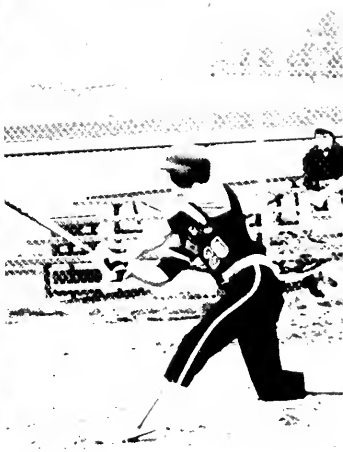
Men's Baseball

Even though Coach Larry Inkster was away from campus on sabbatical leave, the team approached the season with optimism. Interim Coach Dwayne Peters, Union College graduate and former Varsity player, with the help of his assistant, student Miles Estes, had many players this year with the experience of a conference win the season before. For various reasons, however, the 1984 team got off to a slow start, losing games on the annual Alabama trip, always a matter of facing opponents with stronger teams. By mid-season, the record of wins and losses leveled off, but not, unofrtunately, in time to add up to a winning season. Union's players showed good form, as the pictures above and on the page at right will testify. Top of facing page: Catcher Alvin Bailey hurls one to catch an opponent at second base. Bottom: Jeff Hensley and Randy Jackson swing their bats.





Swimming

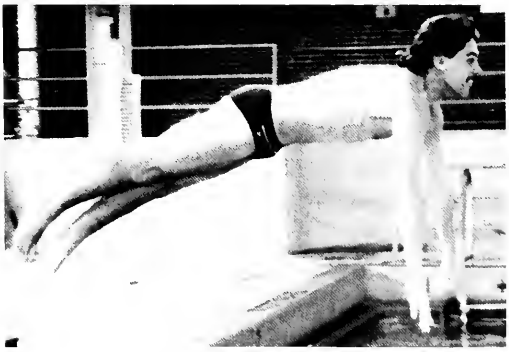
Captains Mike Smith and Mike Taylor swam distance events and sprints respectively.



This was the first year of competitive swimming for many on our team, but they trained hard and kept up their enthusiasm during the whole season. With only two seniors on this year's team, Coach Metcalfe has hopes for an even better season next year since he will not only have seasoned swimmers returning but also looks forward to new recruits for the coming season. This season the team placed fifth in the Kentucky Intercollegiate Swimming Conference championship competition.

Tennis

Metcalfe sees a good team forming for next year since this year's crew included five freshmen who will be sharpening their play for next go-round.

The Student Senate is the democratic voice of the student body. The organization thrives on leadership, character and a sense of school spirit and participation from its members. One of the main projects for the group was helping overturn the attendance policy. The Student Senate sponsored a campus picnic at Dr. Thomas Walker Park and organized the student body and the administration of the college in a question and answer forum in the Chapel.

The Lighthouse Singers are students who practice in the Lighthouse and have fellowship. Through singing, they are able to express their faith and promote Christian fellowship. The group, which is part of the Campus Ministry Program, sang in over a dozen locations during the 1983-84 year. Besides singing in churches from Harlan County to Louisville, the Lighthouse Singers also sang for Chapel, Parent's Weekend, and Homecoming Weekend. Dan and Elin Crabtree directed the singers and Quentin Sholtz, the Campus Minister, scheduled activities and sang with the group.

Through the Appalachian Wilderness Club, members share and experience a common interest in back-packing, hiking, caving, camping, and rappelling. During the 1983-84 year, Union students explored many caves throughout the Appalachian region. Two major events of the year included, a combined camping and caving trip to Rockcastle County, Kentucky and a back-packing trail expedition to Mt. Rogers National Park.

Circle K

Circle K is a service organization, which serves both campus and community. It's a leadership group similar to Kiwanis and other service clubs. Although small, Circle K participated in many activities during the 1983-84 year, including a Christmas party for the Cumberland Valley Comprehensive Care Center for children, Union College Jamboree (held during Daniel Boone Festival), Elderhostel, and huggers, kissers, and cheerers for Special Olympics

The Modern Culture Study Group studies modern culture, emphasizing the cinematic arts, through group discussion, films, readings and lectures. During the 1983-84 year, the group was very active, showing films on campus such as Phantom of the Opera, King Kong, and Spellbound. Other films shown, in conjunction with Charles Mitchell's film course, were Woodstock and The Last Wave. The Modern Culture Study Group was also one of the sponsors for public showing and discussion of an Appalachian Shop film, The Big Lever.

ACTIVITIES

Amahl And The Night Visitors.

In early December, 1983, the college presented "Amahl and the Night Visitors," a Christmas light opera by Gian Carlo Menotti, as part of the Christmas Festival which is fast becoming a tradition at Union College.

Both faculty and students worked on the production, either as actors and singers or as members of the vital backstage crew. (Right) Amahl's Mother (Betty Stroud) and her crippled son (Lowell Ebersole of the Harlan Boys Choir) sing of the frosty night with its huge star overhead, their humble home in the background. (Below) Laura Lee Love and Whitney Green dance to entertain the three Kings. Balthazar (Christopher Burt) and Kaspar (Herbert Adams) look on with Amahl and his mother in the background.

Steve Sproles and his technical crew worked long hours, turning the chapel into a theatre complete with stage, setting and lights. The production played to audiences totaling almost 500 people.

Above: Whitney Green cuts a caper in the dance. Top Right: As Balthazar, Kaspar and Melchior (Joe Tarry) sleep, the Mother tries to steal the Kings' gold, but is nabbed by the Page (Richard Lockett). Right: Amahl wishes to send his crutch he made himself to the Child as a gift, and his sacrifice is rewarded by a miracle: he can walk again. Here he has handed his crutch to Kaspar. Below: Amahl will go with the Kings, and he and the Mother watch as the Page struggles to get his burdens together, including a live parrot. His unraveling loin cloth was not part of the planned action.

The Union College singers performed as the Chorus of Shepherds in "Amahl." Students working backstage included Cathy Pesce, who was Assistant to the Director, Jason LeMay, Daugh Sizemore, Tracy Meadows, Cotha Van Doran who was Costume Mistress, D.J. McMullin, Tammie Shepherd, Audrey White, Cheryl Cole, Bonetta Hale, Susan Sprinkle, and Maureen O'Hara. Barbara Timm was rehearsal accompanist. Joe Tarry produced the opera, Allan Green conducted the 20-piece orchestra, and Lester Woody staged the musical drama.

Drama At Union

Spoon River Anthology

Edgar Lee Masters' "Spoon River Anthology" opened the season in October, playing in the newly renovated Rector Little Theater. Above: the actors, musicians, and members of the backstage crew sit for their portrait: Seated: Tracy Meadows, Joey Wick, Darwin Winston, Tammie Shepherd, Cathy Pesce; Standing: Rich Lockett, Lori Morrison, Deronda Collier, Byron Hammons, Maureen O'Hara, Dr. David Davis who directed and designed the production, and Cotha Van Doren.

The Glass Menagerie

Tennessee Williams' "The Glass Menagerie" was the second production of the season at Union. It was an effective performance of the modern theater classic, showing how Laura, the introverted daughter of a mother still living in a dream-like past, almost emerges from her world centered on her collection of glass animals, only to be driven back into it by bitter disappointment.

The cast of "The Glass Menagerie": Tom, Whitney Green; Amanda, the mother, D.J. McMullen, Laura, Cathy Pesce; Jim, Laura's unsuspecting love from high school days, Brian T. Woodlee. Directed by David Davis, the production was designed by Cotha Van Doren who was also technical director. Maureen O'Hara was the stage manager, assisted by Susan Sprinkle. Darwin Winston was sound master for the show.

"The Fantasticks" was the final show of the 1983-1984 drama season. See pages 96 and 97 in this yearbook.

Close Ties

Cathy Pesce, shown at left, played Josephine, the aged grandmother in "Close Ties," a drama of the elderly as a family problem. Cathy, an English and drama major, played leading roles in each of the season's productions. The other members of the cast of "Close Ties": members of Josephine's family who have the problem of what to do with the strong-minded but senile old woman: Bess, Miranda Stroud; Watson, Carl Turner; Anna, Glenna Brock; Evelyn, Cotha Van Doren; Connie, Maureen O'Hara; Thayer, Scott Halcomb; and Ira, Whitney Green.

Our Cheerleaders

Junior Class Talent Show

Rhonda Barnett winds up to bat the volleyball over the net.

Rocky Healey, Union's jovial food manager points gleefully at the mud-hole the tug o'war contestants might find themselves in ... and Audrey Fitzgerald goes in with a splash!

Rocky's Cookout

Special Olympics

Each spring the Special Olympics are held on the college's athletic field. Sponsored by the local Junior Chamber of Commerce, many Union students participate in this event for the handicapped, acting as "huggers" that encourage those in the various events, cheer them on, and then give them praise and affection, whether they win or lose an event.

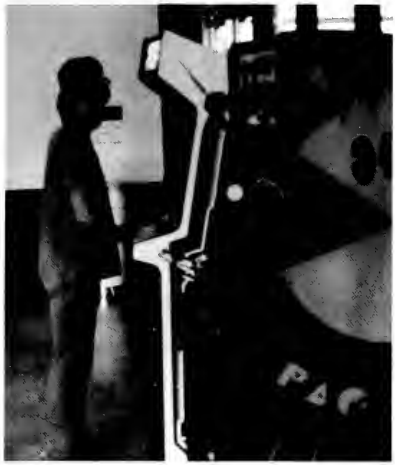
Besides the athletic events — there are even races for those in wheelchairs — food and other entertainment is also provided, like the two jolly clowns at right.

Below, Lori Morrison and Roby Stamper prepare to man a barbeque grill that will cook food to satisfy hearty appetites resulting from the physical exertions of the participants.

Chez Rocky's

Since Rocky Healey came to Union College as the ARA manager of the college dining hall, students have enjoyed a wider selection of food than in years past. Above, from left, Jimmy Adams, Bill Selby, Roby Stamper, and Mark Harris start their way through the serving line. Below, the lunch time crowd digs in. The plants in both photographs are a Rocky addition to the atmosphere, along with colorful decorations on the salad bar, signs of coming events, a trivia quiz contest, and other pleasantries to make students' dining more attractive. Rocky also planned cookouts in good weather with steaks and other treats. Students also enjoyed the addition of an ice cream dispenser, another Rocky Healey innovation.

"The Idle Hour"



Computer Science?

The Recreation Room in the Student Center provides relaxation for resident students as well as commuters. Pool tables, ping pong, electronic games, and pinball machines appeal to those who want to try their various skills and also fosters commraderie among the college's denizens. Here are some of the players caught, so to speak, in the act of having a break from the arduous tasks demanded by their academic pursuits.

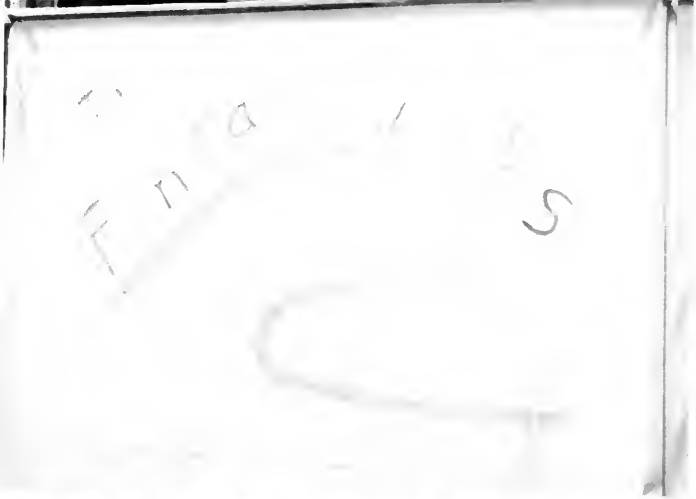
Aerobic Dancing?

English Lesson?

Cathy Pesce directed the final production of the year, the charming boy-meets-girl musical, "The Fantasticks." The curtain at left rolled up to reveal an inner stage. At left center, El Gallo (David Davis) sells a scheme to Bellomy (Herb Adams) and Hucklebee (Bob Swanson). Lower left, El Gallo sashays off as the Mute (Candy Wood) showers autumn leaves on Luisa (Deronda Collier) and Matt (Bryan Woodlee). Below, the Mute showers them with raindrops.

Besides performances in the Rector Little Theater, the show also performed at Corbin High School as one of the events in the Fine Arts Concert Series which brings cultural events to this area of Southeastern Kentucky.

Tammie Shepherd, Maureen O'Hara, D.J. McMullen, Whitney Green, Cotha Van Doren, Audrey Fitzgerald, Tina Noonan, Steve Sproles, and Dallas Shields also contributed backstage.



Matt and Luisa, separated by the "wall" — the Mute's outstretched arms, have climbed up so they can see each other. Here they sing of their budding love.

The first act ends with a typical musical show tableau with Luisa and Matt up on their perches and Bellomy (Luisa's father) and Hucklebee (Matt's).

Herb Adams as Bellomy and Bob Swanson as Hucklebee go into a lively song and dance routine.

Music, Please!

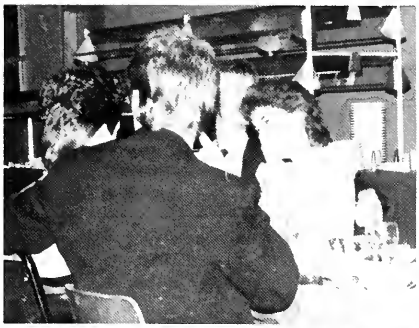
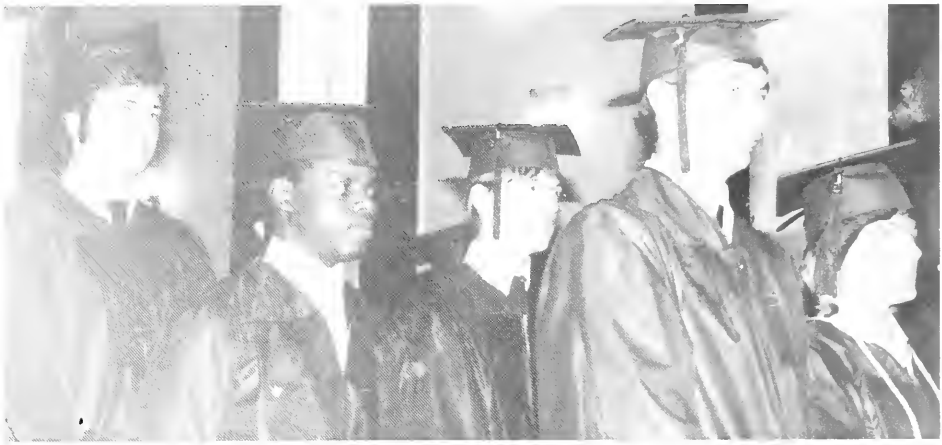
Spring Formal



The Holiday Inn at Harrogate, Tennessee, was the scene of the 1984 Spring Formal. Dinner, dancing until 1 a.m., and a brief talk by President Jack Phillips in between, all made up a memorable evening. Some of the festivities are shown here.

Commencement, 1984



Union's 105th Commencement was on May 6, 1984. Top, graduates march into the chapel. Above, Bill Grey keeps an eye on things and Barbara Timm turns pages for Gordon Marigold, organist.
